grand jury:

Nick Wilson, G. C. McAnelly, George
Bader, John Watson, George Miller,
S. C. Rieber, Robert Decker, R. J.
Killough, W. M. Saathoff and J. F.
Riley.

Isaac Wilson was appointed foreman of the grand jury.

J. H. Henderson, A. E. Harper,
Alf. Bader, J. R. Stroud and J. G.
Newton qualified as bailiffs.

PETIT JURY.

The following were sworn in as petit jurors for the first week of the court:

Jacob Rothe, Otto W. Huegele,
Henry Haegelin, R. W. Slater, D. A.
Ketchum, Leo Batot, Fritz Martin,
Howard Laughinghouse, L. J. Man-
gold, Ed. Schneider, A. W. Martin, F. W. Oeffinger, H. D. Jones, Otto
Haby, Louis Britsch, Otto Stolte, Ray Taylor, Jim Fusselman, Toby Koch;
tailsmen, C. H. Hartman, Lyman Morris, O. H. Brucka, Aug. Gerdes and Fritz Bohlen.

The following business had been disposed of up to noon Thursday:

Adams Company vs. S. T. Spivey et al., suit on note. Dismissed as to J. S. Spivy; judgment for plaintiff against other defendants.

Adams Company vs. D. A. Ketchum et al., suit on note. Judgment for plaintiff.

trust and note. Judgment for plaintiff. Notice of appeal given.

The case of Jno. W. Gaines et al. vs.
Jno. D. Smith et al., to cancel deed, etc., went to trial Thursday afternoon and will probably occupy the attention of the court for the remainder of the week.

The grand jury returned three indictments as follows:

State of Texas vs. ———, murder.

State of Texas vs. Tomas Lopez, burglary.

State of Texas vs. Juan Balles, burglary.

The two latter defendants are in the county jail.

The grand jury adjourned for the term Thursday.

After the selection of the jury that is sitting in the Gaines-Smith case the remainder of the petit jury summoned for the first week of the court was discharged.

The criminal docket will be called Monday morning. As there are but two cases on the docket subject to trial it is probable this part of the docket will take up but little of the court's time the coming week.

Henry Hartmann, Sr.

Henry Hartmann, Sr., was born in the Principality of Schaumburg-Lippe, Germany, on the 7th day of December,
1846. In the early part of September, 1860, in company with an uncle and aunt, he sailed on the sailing vessel, Wesser, for America, arriving after a voyage of ninety days, at Galveston, from whence the trip overland was made by ox-wagon, arriving at New Fountain several days before Christmas, 1860.

Deceased always made this his home,
although he spent several years making lumber and hunting on the Guadalupe, above Kerrville, where he had many experiences with Indians.

In 1872, when E. J. Davis was Governor of Texas, he ordered the organization of several companies of rangers for frontier protection. Mr. Hartmann joined one of these, commanded by Captain H. J. Richarz and Lieutenant X. Wantz. During his enlistment he went on many scouts with Lieut.
Wantz.

On the 11th day of June, 1873, in company with Louis Hartung, Fred Folk, Charles Martin and a negro, Hy. Johnson, he went on a cow hunt up in the Peach Tree country, and there fought one of the most desperate battles ever fought in Indian warfare.
While apart from his companions he was attacked by a band of twenty-two Comanche Indians. His companions could not assist him as another band fired upon them. Mr. Hartman finally made his escape after killing one Indian and fatally wounding another, and being himself shot once in the foot and once in the leg, which made him a cripple for the rest of his life, and which, no doubt, hastened his death by several years.

On the 30th of May, 1874, he was married to Sophie Senne, which union was blessed by ten children, one dying in infancy. The others all survive him. They are: Charles, John, Willie, Ernest, Henry, Jr., Fritz and George Hartmann; Mrs. Anton Folk and Mrs.
Frank Westfall.

Deceased was a kind husband and a loving father, beloved by all who knew him; he was quiet and unassum-ing, and as honest as the day was long.
He often said he would rather starve than have anything that was not honestly his.

He died Saturday, Oct. 15, 1921, aged 74 years 10 months and 8 days.
His remains were laid to rest in Oak wood Cemetery at Hondo on Oct. 16, 1921, beside those of his wife, who preceded him in death Sept. 10, 1918.
The funeral services were conducted by Rev. S. Weiss of Quilhi and Falken-burg of Hondo. Pall bearers were: X.
Wantz, Val Nester, Geo. Muennink,
Geo. Heyen, John Muennink, Adolph Nietenhoefer.

That deceased was well known and liked was shown by the number of people who attended his funeral and by the floral offerings at the grave.
May he rest in peace.

Appreciation.

We are very grateful to all who worked so faithfully and hard to make our dinner a success. And we wish to extend our thanks to each and every one, and especially to those men that their time to help us:—Kimmey Transfer Co., Hondo Lumber Co., Mr. Joe Huesser, Mr. Claude Gilliam, and the Chamber of Commerce, for the hall.

The two men stole up the rough road leading to the hut. The glow of the lantern came from the building, shining in a long, fading wedge from the sashless window, but seemed strangely obscure about the door. As they approached this mystery was revealed; a blanket was seen to hang over the doorway.

"That's a good sign," whispered Gardiner. "One, or both of them, are sleeping. That's why they feel the cold. If they had stayed awake they would have built a fire and perhaps walked about outside."

They paused for a moment to listen. The night was moonless and starry, except where a bank of clouds came drifting up from the southwest. A moist breeze, smelling of soft, mountain snow, gently stirred the trees about them. But from the shanty no sound could be discerned. They approached nearer, and still nearer.

"Now, you go to the door, and I'll take the window," Gardiner ordered. "Shove the blanket aside a little and size up the situation before you speak. We must make sure they're there, and there alone."

Gardiner waited until he saw Riles fumbling carefully with the blanket that hung in the doorway. Then he darted quickly to the window.

While Allan sat in the little cabin he gradually became oppressed with a sense of great loneliness. From time to time he looked at the face of his sleeping father, and suddenly the knowledge struck him like a knife that it was the face of an old man. Allan could see plainly the deepening furrows in his strong, still handsome face. As he looked a vast tenderness mingled with his loneliness; he would have stooped and caressed him had he not feared to disturb his slumbers.

He looked upon the sleeping man now, with the wealth of a lifetime's labor at his side, and the bond of trust and confidence between them seemed so tight it brought the moisture to his eyes. He thought of the past years; of their labor on the farm together—hard labor, but always relieved by their comradeship and mutual ambitions.

His memory carried him still further back—back to the days when he was a little child, and in the mirror of the darkness he could see his own small figure trudging in the track of the plow and hanging to the rein ends that dropped from the knot on his father's ample back. Back to the old sod shanty, with its sweet smell of comfort when the snow beat against the little window and the wind roared in the rattling stove pipe, and his mother sat by the fire and plied her dying needles. Old lullabies stole into his brain; a deep peace compassed him, and consciousness faded thinner and thinner into the sea of the infinite. . . .

Allan sat up in a sudden, cold chill of terror. Had he been asleep? What cold breath of dread had crossed his path? He was no coward; the sense of fear was almost unknown to him, but now it enveloped him, stifled him, set his teeth chattering and his limbs quaking. He had heard nothing, seen nothing. The gun was in his hands as it had lain when last he remembered it; his father slept by his side, and near the wall lay the precious satchel. And yet he shook in absolute, unreasoning, unfounded terror. His eyes wandered from the lantern to the door—to the blanket hanging limply in the doorway; and there they stared and stayed as though held in the spell of a serpent. Subconsciously, certainly without any direction of will of his own, he raised the shot gun to his shoulder and kept it trained on the sagging blanket. . . . The blanket seemed to move! It swayed at first as though a light breeze had touched it and yet not as though a breeze had touched it. The impulse seemed too far up—about the height of a man's shoulder. The blood had gone from Allan's face; he was as one in a trance, obeying some iron law outside the realm of the will and the reason. He cocked his gun and tightened his finger on the trigger, and watched. . . . And then, so plain that it must have been real, he saw stealthy fingers feeling their way about the blanket.

Then Allan fired.

In an instant he was wide awake, and wondering terribly what had happened. The explosion blew out the lantern, and the building was in utter darkness. His father was clambering to his feet with "Allan, what is it? What is it, Allan?" The blanket had been torn from its hangings as by a heavy weight, and something was writhing in it in the doorway. Allan sprang up and would have rushed upon it, but in the darkness he collided with another man. His fingers found his adversary's arm and ran up to his throat, but before they could fasten in a fatal grip there was another flash of light, and a hot pang stabbed him in the breast. There was a strange gurgling in his lungs, a choking in his throat, a spinning dizziness in his head, as he staggered over the mass in the doorway and fell into the night.

Gardiner had reached the window just in time to see Allan's gun trained on the doorway. For an instant he stood dumbfounded; there was something uncanny in the sight of the young man sitting there in silent, absolute readiness for the attack. He drew back to warn Riles, but he was too late. At that moment the gun spoke; there was the sound of a heavy body falling, and stifled noises bore ample evidence of the accuracy of Allan's aim. But even in that moment of uncertainty Gardiner had not lost thought of their purpose, and his quick eye took in the sleeping form of John Harris and the location of the leather bag beside the wall. Without an instant's hesitation he vaulted through the window and, revolver in hand, began to steal his way softly toward the treasure.

He had not taken three steps when Allan plunged full force into him. He staggered with the shock, but recovered himself only to find the young farmer's strong fingers clutching for his throat. It had been no part of Gardiner's plan that there should be bloodshed in the carrying out of the robbery, but he was a man of quick decision, who accepted conditions as he found them. . . . A slight pressure on the trigger, and Allan fell, coughing, through the door.

Gardiner retained his sense of location, and slipped silently to the wall. Harris was rushing about the rotten floor in the darkness, crying, "What is it, Allan? For God's sake, what has happened? Are you shot?" and for his own noise he could not hear Gardiner's stealthy movements. Gardiner's hand fell on a log of the wall, and his keen fingers traced their own way along it. Five steps, he judged, and the bag would be at his feet. At the fifth step his toe touched an object on the floor; he leaned over and raised the booty in his hand.

By this time his eyes had responded to the intense darkness, and he could discern a square of grayer gloom where the window admitted the night. He moved rapidly and silently toward it, but almost with the last step his foot slipped through a broken spot on the floor, and he staggered and fell. The revolver was thrown from his grasp, but he was able to pitch the bag through the window as he crashed to the floor.

Nature Tells You.

As Many a Hondo Reader Knows Too Well.

When the kidneys are weak, Nature tells you about it. The urine is nature's index. Life-quiet or too frequent passage. Other disorders suggest kidney ills. Doan's Kidney Pills are for disordered kidneys.

Hondo people testify to their worth. O. H. Getter, retired painter, Hondo says: "Several years ago I was taken with a terrible backache and my kidneys acted irregularly. On stooping over it was an effort for me to straighten up again. Nights I had to get up frequently to pass the kidney secretions, which were scanty, highly colored and scalding. I felt tired and worn out all the time and had no ambition to do anything. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and started their use. After taking two boxes of Doan's my back was strong and my kidneys acted regularly."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Getter had. Foster-McBarn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

EDITORIALS BY THE EDITOR.

NOW WILL THEY STOP?

The Governor called upon the Attorney General's Department for an opinion as to the legal status of the Ku Klux about which we have heard much recently.

In a voluminous report, in which a surprisingly large number of citations from the constitution, the penal code and court decisions was made, the opinion, among others, voices the following conclusions:

"The great bulwark of our government is its written Constitution and its laws safeguarding the life, liberties and property of its citizens. There can be no division of our governmental power. All proper power must rest in the written law of the land and must be administered by the duly constituted officers of the country."

"We therefore conclude that all efforts of persons under any name they may have assumed to better the moral conditions of the country through the medium of threats, fear, intimidation and personal violence, is violative of the spirit and letter of the Constitution and laws of our state, and each and every act done and performed by them carrying out or furthering any illegal purpose, or which has for its object the doing of any act forbidden by law, would involve the guilt of all participants having knowledge of a general purpose to do illegal acts or actual knowledge of the doing of an illegal act."

"It, therefore, follows that if any order, organization or body of individuals agree and confederate among themselves to do any act which would be in violation of the laws of the country and every act of every individual composing the conspiracy in the furtherance of the conspiracy would be illegal. This would apply to the masked parades where such parade is a part of, and in furtherance of, a purpose to do some act which would be in violation of the law."

Following receipt of the opinion, the Governor gave out a public communication in which he calls on the "peace officers of Texas to enforce the laws" and asks "all right thinking citizens of every creed and color to uphold the hands of our officers in their efforts to maintain the supremacy of the law."

If there had ever been any doubt in the mind of any "right thinking citizen" as to his duty in the matter this should forever remove that doubt.

If it be true, as always claimed by apologists for the Ku Klux, that it is composed of "good men" then there will soon be no Ku Klux Klan, for a good man will not knowingly remain an outlaw.

That the Ku Klux Klan is an outlaw body is plainly established by the letter of the law, and to remain in it is to be in knowing defiance of constituted authority.

Now, will they stop? Civil strife can be avoided in no other way.

If there are any who prefer that to peace, it is well for them to be warned in time.

From the voluminous citations of the opinion we quote only two:

"Art. 1101. P. C. (671). In suppressing riots.—Homicide is justifiable when necessary to suppress a riot, when the same is attempted to be suppressed in the manner pointed out in the Code of Criminal Procedure, and can in no way be suppressed except by taking life."

"Art. 1105. P. C. Homicide is permitted by law, when the party slain in disguise is engaged in any attempt by either gesture or otherwise to alarm some other person or persons and put them in bodily fear."

It is beginning to look like this country is going to be vexed with a gigantic railroad strike about the end of this month. With the merits of the points at issue this paper is not concerned either pro or con. And for the details we care less. Sufficient for us to know is that the whole controversy is rooted and grounded in human selfishness. The roads are robbing the public outrageously—robbing them with extortionate rates and bum service—and, in turn, the roads are being robbed shamelessly by their employees. And the public does the suffering and the paying. In the end, no matter who wins the strike, the public will be the sufferer. If the strike should be continued far into the winter, what this suffering will be, one shudders to contemplate. But shivering want and starving humanity are meaningless to both parties to the controversy. How much longer organized society will continue to tolerate this violence to its rights is not for us to say. But organized, unfeeling autocracy found an end to its sway in Russia. Organized, grasping, unfeeling greed in America might well profit by their experience.

FORTUNATE is the man whose corn crib is filled with corn, whose smoke house is stored with meat and lard and whose wood-pile is replenished with an ample supply. Verily shall he keep house in comfort whether the winter storms storm or not, whether the League of Nations leagues, the Disarmament Conference disarms, the railroad strike strikes, or the Ku Klux keep on klucking. Great is Texas! And Medina County is the best spot in it!

Fletcherized Farm Facts. BY FLETCHER DAVIS

THE DESERT AND THE ROSE—A BOOK REVIEW.

"The Desert and The Rose" is not a scientific treatise on "dry farming." Neither is it a work on floriculture, as its name might imply.

In fact, it is not a book like any other book on farming you have ever read.

And yet it is a farm book—a book that breathes and pulsates with the most intimate affairs of farm life—the life of the crops and plants, of the live stock, and of the author.

Ah! the author! Therein lies the secret of the book's quaint originality.

The author, Edith Nichol Ellison (whether Mrs. or Miss the book discloses not) is an educated Virginia lady who some years ago settled alone on an irrigated farm in the Mesilla Valley in New Mexico some forty miles north of El Paso.

The book is the journal of her experiences on this new and, to her, untried project.

The recital of how she met and overcame difficulties that would have daunted a less resolute spirit is told in the intimate style of one who seems to be making a confident of you all the while, and mighty interesting reading it makes too.

About the time you think you are going to get a regular treatise on the important subject of irrigation you forget your hunger for scientific information in your amusement at the author's description of how she ruined a Sunday frock trying to prevent the run away irrigation waters from flooding her premises.

Just so, as soon as you think you are going to learn her methods of handling purebred chickens so as to "cop" the most of the poultry prizes in New Mexico, you find yourself reading of the peculiar antics of some pet fowl.

As a treatise on farming methods in New Mexico, the book will be disappointing; its writer never intended it for such.

But as a human interest story, replete with the most intimate affairs of an unusual woman in an unusual situation in an unusual country, it will afford you pleasant diversion.

It is published and sold by the Cornhill Company, Boston.

FARM BLACKSMITHING—A BOOK REVIEW.

When the writer was a boy and on rainy days was called from his favorite pastime of reading books—any kind he could lay hands on—to pull the bellows in the old farm blacksmith shop while his father did the repairing of tools and implements used on the farm, it never occurred to him that any one would ever write a book on such a subject as Farm Blacksmithing. And yet that is what Prof. John F. Friese has done, and a right interesting book it is too.

"This book" to quote the author, "is the direct outgrowth of the author's experiences in teaching farm blacksmithing to farm boys. The objects, of which the process of blacksmithing is described in the book, all center about farm activities."

"The purpose of the book is twofold. It is intended as an aid to a teacher of farm blacksmithing, being a source of problems, and suggestive of how the work may be carried forward."

"In addition to being a 'What' and 'How' book for instructors, the author constantly had in mind its direct use by farmers as a means of self-instruction in blacksmithing. Because of its intended use as a book of self-instruction the author has taken nothing for granted."

"Farm blacksmithing is a rougher type of work than that expected of a city smith on automobile or auto truck work. The important question is: 'Does it fit and is it strong enough?' In welding the question is not, 'How does it look?' but 'Will it hold?'"

And then follows eighty nine illustrated pages, telling in plain simple language just how the thing is done. If you have a boy who likes to hammer iron he will be interested in this book and the book will tell him how to go at the simplest undertakings in the correct way and avoid the failures that cause many boys to despair of success in handling blacksmithing tools. The book is published by the Manual Arts Press, Peoria, Illinois, and sells for $1.25.

SOME one was once provoked to exclaim: "Oh! Liberty! What crimes are committed in thy name." Friends of Co-operation might well paraphrase the cry. Today, when the pressing need of the country is for a more efficient and more economical system of distribution of the products of the farm, ranch and garden, and earnest men are turning in hope to co-operation for a measurable solution of some of these intricate problems, toadstool growths of spurious co-operative enterprises, fostered by designing men for selfish ends, are springing up by night every where, poisoning the public and retarding the growth of the right kind. People need at this time to take full measure of the motives of the men promoting untried co-operative movements and of the methods and the means proposed to achieve the wonderful results so glowingly promised.

It is doubtful if there has ever been a time when purebred live stock of all kinds could be purchased so cheaply on the average as at the present time. The man with vision and foresight and with his eyes focussed on "the main chance" will take advantage of the present low price to eliminate the scrub and introduce new and improved blood. In the future, the producer is going to have to look more closely than ever before after all those factors that will contribute to the maximum production at the minimum of cost. The best blood is one of the main factors of economic production in the live-stock game.

Was Very Weak

"After the birth of my baby I had a back-set," writes Mrs. Mattie Crosswhite, of Glade Springs, Va. "I was very ill, thought I was going to die. I was so weak I couldn't raise my head to get a drink of water. I took . . . medicine, yet I didn't get any better. I was constipated and very weak, getting worse and worse. I sent for Cardui."

"High" Suffers First Defeat.
St. Anthony College downs locals by 13 to 0.
Playing before a home crowd for the first time this year, Hondo's "Fighting Warriors" met defeat at the hands of the powerful St. Anthony College squad.
Not a man on the team or a person in the crowd felt discouraged over the result, for everyone knew that the St.
Anthony team consisted of a collection of old veterans who knew the game from every angle and had a great advantage in weight over our boys.
To hold them to a 13 to 0 score was in itself a mighty feat for our boys, and brings out again the fact that fighting, and fighting hard, will accomplish most. The team lived up to its reputation as a fighting bunch and showed it clearly throughout the game.
Had it not been for their grit and determination there's no telling what the score might have been.

St. Anthony scored its two touchdowns in the first half and that was all. Hondo tightened up and kept the College boys out of danger till the final whistle. The team suffered a severe setback when Bob Bendele had to retire due to injuries, but this did not effect their playing. They kept on trying and trying but just couldn't break through the St. Anthony defense.
From their showing, we predict a bad day for Pearsall to-day. With any sort of luck "High" ought to win from their strongest rivals.
Come out. Pearsall here to-day.

MEXICO NOW SETTLED ATTRACTS THOUSANDS

BUSINESS GROWING RAPIDLY AND PEOPLE CROWDING INTO
ALL SECTIONS

DEPARTMENTS OFFERING AID

Bureau of Industry, Commerce and Labor Urges Interested Parties to Write.

Assured that revolutionary conditions in Mexico have been adjusted and that the country is entering upon an era of prosperity and rehabilitation, business in the Southern Republic has been showing an enormous increase and all trains running to principal points in Mexico have been crowded for months.

Credit ratings have been adjusted and freight congestion has been enormous. In the past months as many as two thousand cars of freight have been waiting at the border for movement. Enormous lines of credit have been extended to the Government and rolling stock, engines, etc., purchased in large numbers for the railroads.

Foreigners Acquire Land

Notwithstanding the persistently circulated statements that the laws of Mexico forbid any foreigner to acquire title to lands without first becoming a Mexican citizen, some 2,623 citizens of other countries as a matter of fact bought lands in various portions of the Republic in the year 1920.

The only requirement as a condition precedent to the acquisition of lands in Mexico by foreigners, is that they shall first sign a pledge to abide by the laws of Mexico and in all matters pertaining to the lands in question shall be considered as on the same basis as Mexican citizens. This is the tacit requirement of all foreigners acquiring real property in the United States, the only difference being that in this country a foreigner naturally abides by the laws, and no written pledge is exacted while in Mexico many foreigners, presuming upon its position in the family of nations, have the presumption to demand extra consideration and extra privileges as against the native of the country. Hence the necessity for the law in question.

Mexico Not Distant

Many persons when they think of Mexico, believe it to be an ungodly distance away. To Mexico means the same distance to many as Europe or Asia or Africa and certainly many feel that South America is closer than Mexico. Yet, compared on the basis of the mileage over the National Lines of Mexico we find that Mexico is not remote or in any sense inconvenient of access. The least rail distance between New York and Portland, Ore., is 399 miles greater than the least rail distance between New York and Mexico City.

Between New York and Los Angeles, 326 miles greater than between New York and Mexico City. Between Chicago and Portland 165 miles greater than between Chicago and Mexico City. Between St. Louis and Portland, Ore., 425 miles greater than between St. Louis and Mexico City. Between St. Louis and Los Angeles, 213 miles greater than between St. Louis and Mexico City. Between San Antonio and Los Angeles, 493 miles greater than between San Antonio and Mexico City.

The demand for offices and buildings for stores and shops is becoming so great in Mexico City that rents are going up in the business district and there are few vacant stores or offices on any of the principal streets.

A decree recently issued provides that all doctors and dentists entering Mexico must pass an examination, but those who have been practicing for three years in the country may continue by registering their diplomas, if they are from foreign institutions of high standing.

Railroads in Good Condition

Mr. Manuel M. Vasquez, President of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, in commenting on conditions in Mexico said:

"The railroads of Mexico are in good condition physically, the road bed is in good shape. The roads are short of equipment, cars and engines have been shot to pieces. Mexico is full of business and the people are travelling. Good order prevails in Mexico City and in the country outside so far as I could see. You can't do things in Mexico City that you could do here, if you did they would put you in jail quicker than a wink. The shops seem to be busy and financial conditions are sound."

The Mexican parcels post business with the United States as well as the money order business, is increasing very fast. It is a very good indication of the growth of commerce between the two countries. The United States Postoffice Department has just notified the Mexican Postoffice Department that $100,000 has been placed at the disposition of the Mexican Department, which is due to the Mexican service in the balancing of accounts. This is parcel post business. The United States Postoffice Department also owes the Mexican Department money on money order business which they intend to remit.

During the last three months the number of postal packages from the United States received in Mexican postoffices were more than 95,000 packages, which is ten times the number received during an average period of three months during the year 1912.

Department Furnishes Information

The Department of Industry, Commerce and Labor of the Mexican government welcomes any questions as to conditions in Mexico with reference to any commercial or industrial pursuit. Letters should be addressed to the Secretary of the department and they will then be referred to the proper departments. There has been much information advanced with reference to Mexico that has not been authentic and the department is desirous of giving first hand information to any person interested.

WORSE THAN ANY HURRICANE

Arabian Desert Storm Obscures the Sun—Bitter Cold Is Followed by Intense Heat.

In the World's Work Thomas E. Lawrence describes the action of a desert storm as follows:

"There had been long rolls of thunder all morning in the hills, and the two peaks of Serd and Jasim were wrapped in folds of dark blue and yellow vapor that looked motionless and substantial. A few minutes after we had marched again, I looked back at them, and noticed that part of the yellow cloud of Serd was coming slowly in our direction, against the wind, pushing scores of dust devils before it. The cloud was nearly as high as the hill, and as it approached it sent out two dust-spouts, tight and symmetrical columns like chimneys, one on the right and one on the left of its front.

"When it got nearer, the wind, which had been scorching our faces with its hot breathing, changed suddenly, and blew bitter cold and damp upon our faces. It also increased greatly in violence, and at the same moment the sun disappeared, blotted out by thick mists of yellow air over our heads. We stood in a horrible faint light, ochre-colored and fitful. The brown wall of cloud from the hills was now very near, rushing changelessly toward us, making a loud grinding sound, wrapping us in a blanket of dust, with large stinging grains of sand in it, whirling and turning in most violent eddies, and meanwhile advancing seaward at the speed of a strong gale."

OLD WAYS OF TELLING TIME

Early Methods Were Primitive, but Some Sort of Reckoning Always Has Been Kept.

Today when we glance at our watches and ascertain to the second the correct time, we do not stop to think of the first awkward methods used by primitive man. In the earliest days, man divided the time into two periods, the day and the night. The day was then separated into sunrise, noonday and sunset, and then the morning and afternoon were further divided by the length and position of the shadows. Our first sundial was a stick set upright in the ground and the time was told by the length and position of the shadows. Nearly all ancient peoples of the world had sundials and with them the time was told to the hour and the minute. The Chinese had them, the Romans set up tall shadow columns with officers to watch them and report hourly on the length of the shadows. Even in the Middle Ages the sundial was still used by those poor people who could not afford such luxuries as water clocks or chain glasses.

Chinese Shoes.

Making shoes is the interminable task of Chinese women, from youth to old age. Travelers see them busy in every moment, when necessity does not require attention to some other work, plying the threads back and forth, in and out, in their endless effort to keep the men of their household supplied with footwear. Where there is a surplus, the shoes are sold to the shops.

Thin cloth and paper are used. The thickness of the soles, of alternating layers of cloth and paper held together by paste, often indicate in variations of from one-half to two inches, the wealth of the wearers. The shoes are noiseless and comfortable, but on rainy days China stays indoors because the shoes readily absorb water.

The women make their own tiny shoes in the seclusion of their quarters, even the husband being forbidden to watch their manufacture.

Buffalo Bill's Quick Wit.

Cot. William F. Cody, while traveling in Europe in 1891 with his Wild West show, was on quite intimate terms with royalty. On Buffalo Bill's advent into Berlin Emperor William was entertaining three kings of smaller German powers. One feature of the Wild West performance was the exhibition of an antiquated Deadwood coach, containing passengers who were attracted by Indians and rescued by cowboys. The Kaiser asked that he and his guests be allowed to ride in this vehicle during a performance, and of course the request was granted. After the usual attack and rescue the emperor remarked:

"Colonel Cody, I don't suppose this is the first time that you have held four kings?"

"No, your majesty," replied the scout, "you are right, but it is the first occasion that I ever held four kings and the royal joker at the same time."

Colonel Yell of Yellville.

Yellville was named in honor of a brilliant soldier, Colonel Archibald Yell, who went to his God like a man on the field of Buena Vista. Archibald Yell was a man of parts, a gentleman and in time of peace did his share in politics and in time of war did his share as a soldier. He resigned as a member of congress to enlist as a private at the outbreak of the Mexican war. When the Arkansas troops were organized at Washington, Hempstead county, he was elected colonel of the regiment in which he had enlisted as a private. Albert Pike was a captain under him. At the battle of Buena Vista Yell's command stood against a sweeping charge by a great force of Mexican lancers. Archibald Yell died there fighting hand to hand with the Mexicans.—Arkansas Gazette.

President Obregon Very Popular.

Mexico recently celebrated its Centennial. One hundred years ago the country became an independent nation and although it has been torn many times by internal strife there is every indication that the period of revolutions has passed and that Mexico is settled upon an era of commercial and industrial growth. That Mexico has safely passed the crisis in this possibility is most plainly shown in the open manner in which President Obregon participated in the festivities incident to the Centennial celebration and the fact that no uprising of any kind was even rumored.

September 27th when 15,000 soldiers passed in review before the President and his staff would have been an admirable opportunity for some person to have made the effort. Nothing occurred, however, and following the ceremony, without escort of any kind, President Obregon with his children rode through the streets to Chapultepec. He was greeted on every side in a manner most cordial. To any observer this more than belied the rumors that Mexico is ready to cast him aside, which have been constantly circulated by persons and interests to whom the Mexican government have failed to make concessions.

Mexico expended in the United States last year for meats and meat foods $7,184,899, of which amount more than five million was expended for lard and lard compounds and the balance for hams, bacon and sausages. Fresh meat is being imported into Mexico on the hoof and every day several trains of cattle from Texas arrive in Mexico City or other points of slaughter.

There is a good market in Mexico for dairy cattle and many haciendas are stocking their ranches again with cattle to replace those destroyed during the revolutions.

A decree has been issued providing for a fifty per cent decrease in the present import and export duties on cattle effective September 1st. While the decree is especially aimed at increasing the import of stock for meat and breeding purposes it also aids American livestock owners by enabling them to pasture in Mexico.

Department Furnishes Information.

The Department of Commerce, Industry and Labor of the Mexican government welcomes any questions as to conditions in Mexico with reference to any commercial or industrial pursuit. Letters should be addressed to the Secretary of the department and they will then be referred to the proper departments. There has been much information advanced with reference to Mexico that has not been authentic and the department is desirous of giving first hand information to any person interested.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a general strengthening tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dispel the worms, and the child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 75c per bottle.
